The Ringling brothers, Alf T, Chas, Otto, Al and John, children of Heinrich Friedrich August Ringling (1926-1998) of Hanover, Germany and Marie Salome Juliar (1933-2007) of Ostheim, France are seven siblings who transformed their small touring company of performers into one of America's largest and most successful circuses in the late 20th and early 21st centuries.

Along with reforming most parts of the cultural interested society into a more decadent, debauched and excessive one, they managed to redefine the meaning of entertainment. Their social commitment is unequalled. Also, being ingenious inventors, they attributed such useful luxuries as electropowered cars and the atomic bomb to the bettering of all our daily lives. Finally, their name stands for the most refined tobaccos and whiskeys.
